

Become an International host family

Karen Goodwin-Izmirova, Beighton

"I have been hosting international students for nearly five years now.

I particularly enjoy the mix of personalities between students, they are all so different. One of the students was just like my daughter in her personality and mannerisms. Another shared my passion for animals so we spent a lot of time together visiting the local Butterfly House and going horseriding.

I have learnt a lot about myself through the experience - it has taught me to evaluate how I communicate with others. I would recommend it to anyone!"

Mary Joan Foster, Nether Edge

"I have been hosting international students for two years.

During the first few weeks I like to do activities with the students and show them around, it helps to settle them in and we get to know each other. After that I encourage them to explore the city for themselves, I think this is good for them and their study.

I consider myself their host mother for their stay and you do grow very attached.

We live in a globalised world where the English language is so important so it makes sense for us to help students during their time here. "

Every year, hundreds of students from more than 50 countries come to The Sheffield College to learn English. We work hard to ensure that our guests' stay is as enjoyable as possible.

As part of that experience we are recruiting new host families to accommodate our students during their stay.
